Save the Planet

This is our home, our refuge we must never disown.
Without her we are all alone.

There is no other. There's no other mother but Earth;
From her bounty comes life and birth.

Can we deprive land and sea of what they need to thrive?
If we do, how can they survive?

Can we revive what's been lost? Can we keep it alive?
If we don't, how can we survive?

I hear the calling; it is time to save the planet.
There's no more stalling; it's our home we must defend.
Our generation must come forth and save the planet.
The night is falling and our time is at an end.
Save the planet! Save the planet! Save the planet!

What happens next? Do we go on unchecked, in neglect?
Or do we gain a new respect?

We can protect our sweet Earth.
We can interconnect, as we learn all that we affect.

Hear the hushed voice of the Earth singing songs of rebirth.
She is asking: What life is worth?

Do we belong? Can we learn a new tongue, old and young?
To be strong, we must sing along.

I hear the calling; it is time to save the planet.
There's no more stalling; it's our home we must defend.
Our generation must come forth and save the planet.
The night is falling and our time is at an end.
Save the planet! Save the planet! Save the planet!
